

CLOSING DATE:
30 September 2013

The ARC CHE has a core goal to provide small grant support to scholars as Associate Investigators (AIs) conducting research that focuses on the study of emotions in Europe 1100-1800, or explores the extension of that history in subsequent periods in Australia. Topics should fit within our project areas: Meanings, Change, Performance and Shaping the Modern. Applicants from any relevant discipline are welcome.

Applications should preferably be sent via email to:

Dr Tanya Tuffrey,
Centre Manager :
tanya.tuffrey@uwa.edu.au

or mailed to:

TIMELINE FOR AI 2014 APPLICATION PROCESS

30 September 2013:
Submission deadline for applications.

30 October 2013:
Advice of outcomes.

1 January 2014:
Commencement date for CHE's 2014 AIs.

ELIGIBILITY

- Eligible applicants will:
- Be resident in Australia;
- Hold a PhD in a relevant discipline.

AI SCHEME KEY PRINCIPLES

- Projects must investigate an aspect of the History of Emotions, 1100-1800, or the extension of that history in subsequent periods in Australia, and can be for any length of time up to one year (with a possibility to renew or extend for another year on evidence of achievement of first-year project outcomes). However, any successful applicant who, during the period of their AI status, wins national competitive grant funding for a project focusing on the study of emotions in Europe 1100-1800, will be automatically offered AI status for the duration of that project;
- Applicants must propose demonstrable outcomes appropriate to the nature of the project and the aims of CHE;
- Applicants can seek up to a maximum of $3 000 per year to support project expenses. All budgets must be fully costed and evidenced in the proforma application;
- Successful applicants will be known for the length of their funding period as "Associate Investigators" of the Centre;
- Successful applicants must complete a 6 month progress report and a final report one month after completion of the funding period;
- Successful applicants must acknowledge the support of CHE in all public presentations of project materials (written, oral etc.).

AI APPLICATION PROCESS

- A project proforma must be completed in all aspects and provides the information to assess relevance, originality and viability of the proposed research project.
- Candidates must also supply a CV no longer than three A4 pages, and a statement that indicates track record relative to experience;
